Plane Program

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 20.—A $1-820,941,000 army bill unprecedented in peace time, won quick approval of the senate appropriations committee today while the nation's military chiefs urged speedy realization of President Roosevelt's goal of an air armada of 50,000 planes.

Start Debate Tuesday
Leaders arranged to start senate debate on the big army supply bill tomorrow, and it may go to the house for consideration of senate amendments by midweek. The appropriations committee required
only two hours to vote its approval.
Of the total in the bill, $1,497-711,368 cash would be available for expenditure immediately upon President Roosevelt's signature of the legislation.

The measure, carrying far more than any previous peace time appropriation, includes Mr. Roosevelt's recently-requested allotment of $45,770,364 in cash and $186,229-636 in contract authorizations for army expansion and purchases of airplanes, material, machinery and supplies.

The senate committee eliminated $1,551,720 in cash and $940,000 in contract authorizations for the acquisition of land at military posts.
The full committee retained $66-000,000 of money and $66,000,000 of contract authorizations allotted to the President for use at his discretion. Senator Adams (D-Colo.) and several Republicans sought unsuccessfully to eliminate these items.

Drive to Aid
War Victims
Opens Here

Salem chapter of the American Red Cross today launched its campaign to raise $2,000 for war relief.
This amount is the city's share of the ten million dollar fund sought by national headquarters to aid European war sufferers.
Voluntary contributions are being sought by three groups of women, stationed in the postoffice and the First and Farmers National banks.
Mrs. E. S. Dawson had charge of the postoffice desk today,
while Mrs. Hannah R. Maule and Mrs. Willis R. Hole were at the First National and Farmers banks, respectively.
Money raised by the Salem
Red Cross will be turned over to the national organization to be used at its discretion in meeting emergency relief needs resulting from conflict wherever they may develop. The funds received will be applied wholly and exclusively to war relief work and no part will be applied toward the regular Red Cross activities, it is explained.
In appealing for public subscriptions, Red Cross officials point out that many innocent men, women and children have been the victims of civilian bombings in the European war.

PREPAREDNESS IS SECRET OF
GERMAN ATTACK

SEES WORTH OF
NAZI AIR FORCE
Learns Engineers Have
Substitute Bridges
Already Made

Louis P. Lochner, chief of the Berlin bureau of The Associated Press, has gone to the western front with the German forces by personal invitation of Adolf Hitler in the first trip to the front offered to foreign correspondents. Here is his first story.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
WITH THE GERMAN WEST-ERN ARMIES, May 20.—The air force is Germany's super-ace in this war.
The first line, therefore, usually is where the dive bombers have done their devastating work, but only now, with the German forces at last, am I able to see what the air arm really means in war.

It has been the dream of every newspaperman in Berlin, ever since May 10 when the reich's gigantic offensive by way of Holland and Belgium began, to see Hitler's amazing and awe-inspiring armed forces in action.
Not until yesterday, however, did the fuchers' invitation to give permission for three Americans to join the active forces.

After crossing over from the last German border town in the dust and morning mist mingled with clouds of smoke from roaring planes, it took us but a short time
to realize how war has been revolutionized by the air force.

How Nazis Operate

This is how Germany operates in this decisive area:
First, an air squadron determines
just how enemy troops are moving.
The fliers learn exactly the strength of the enemy's forces,
their equipment, types of weapons
used and other details.

With this knowledge, reinforced by photographs, the Germans' terrorizing stukas (dive bombers), followed by heavy bombers, dash
madly down upon the enemy,
smashing towns—if necessary—
through which troops are pushing, demolishing railway tracks, telephone lines and industrial plants
and annihilating marching columns.

Meanwhile the air information service informs speedy mechanized units where the bombing has been successful.
Quick as lightning these dart
forward in the face of the enemy with death-disdaining courage while the foe is in utter confusion.

After these mobile forces have routed the enemy, the main army is ready to move in.

TIE UP ALL DOGS.
IS CITY'S ORDER

Police Ordered to Shoot All Canines
Running at Large; Disease
Damage Cited

Mayor Norman Phillips today placed a quarantine on all dogs in the city as Chief of Police Ralph Stoffer ordered police to shoot animals found running at large.
The quarantine, which is effective immediately, is designed to prevent the spread of rabies among animals and to prevent the dogs
from damaging lawns, shrubbery
and gardens.

The mayor explained that many persons, at this time of the year, are attempting to beautify their lawns and plant flowers and gardens, and it's a pity thoughtless owners of dogs allow their pets to roam the neighborhoods and destroy other people's property.

"We aren't fooling," he added,
"when we say that police will shoot all stray dogs. People can keep their dogs tied in their own yards or in pens as many persons do."

The officials also pointed out that several cases of rabies among dogs here have developed within the past week and that the quarantine will prevent other dogs, as well as boys and girls, from getting bitten and possibly contracting the disease.

Where Allies and Germans Clash In "Greatest Battle"

Top—Here is the latest map of the so-called "greatest battle in history", now being waged between huge Allied forces and the gigantic mechanized German army. The battle line stretches from the Meuse river in France to the North sea. Dotted lines show the path to Paris, goal of this latest Nazi Blitzkrieg.
Below—Military authorities in London have organized all able-bodied men above war draft age for duty on gun squads to snipe off German parachute troops should they attempt to invade London as they did The Netherlands. A military truck unloads guns and ammunition to a newly organized squad.

STORMS DAMAGE
AREAS IN OHIO

Cleveland Loss $50,000;
Akron, Canton, Columbus Are Hit

(By Associated Press)
Violent storms, traffic and drownings took the lives of 16 Ohioans over the week end and caused extensive damage.
Gales ranging up to 70 miles an hour ripped schools and other buildings, felled many trees and power wires, and littered northern and central Ohio with debris.

Cleveland Hard Hit

Police estimated damage at $50-000 in the Cleveland area alone.
Akron, Canton and Columbus were other storm centers. The wind reached 70 miles an hour at Akron, 65 at Canton, 61 at Cleveland and gusts up to 40 miles an hour at Columbus.

At Akron a portable school was unroofed and another damaged.
Six persons were rescued from capsized canoes in West Akron reservoir. Three persons were saved from an overturned sailboat at Cleveland.

Felled power wires cut off service
to 5,000 homes in four Cleveland suburbs. Four persons were injured by shattered store front glass.
The cornice of a brick building crashed on parked automobiles.
Two golf driving range buildings were flattened.

A Cleveland gasoline station roof
blew on top of a passing automobile
but no one was injured. Lightning struck buildings and toppled chimneys in suburban Parma.

Felled trees halted traffic in some sections of Canton. Columbus had similar tree, utility and window damage. Stark county officials reported heavy damage to orchards.

Traffic Endangered

High wind blew a motorcyclist, Harold G. Green, 19, off the highway south of Greenville and he was killed. An automobile was blown

Germans Hope
To Break Up
Allied Armies

St. Quentin In Hands of Invaders; British Forces Take Up New Defense Line, Said
To Be Stronger Than Before

(By Associated Press)

PARIS, May 20.—Five German mechanized divisions with 60,000 men inside their armor, battered west across the northern French plains today in a drive toward the English channel, easing the threat of a smash at Paris.

Their apparent objective was to drive a wedge between the French forces defending Paris and the Allied armies—British, Belgian and French—in Belgium.

Whether this meant the Nazis definitely had abandoned
the idea of striking at Paris remained a matter of conjecture.
The northern Allied forces dropped back to meet the new threat.

Earlier, a war ministry spokesman reported see-saw fighting at St. Quentin, bloody battleground of the World war, and acknowledged that the Germans were in the city—80 miles northeast of Paris.

Hope to Destroy British

BERLIN, May 20.—The German drive across France veered today
toward the English channel, apparently with the aim of destroying the British army.
Although the high command did not definitely state its objectives,
the German command pointed out that Nazi forces had struck westward—off the road to Paris—
and had gained 20 to 30 miles on a line northward from St. Quentin between Peronne and Cambrai.

Germans estimated that a successful drive to the coast might isolate 300,000 British soldiers on the Allies' northern flank.

They said Allied counter-attacks
in the St. Quentin-Peronne-Cambrai salient—the Somme battlefield of 1916—and near the Belgian border between Maubeuge and Valenciennes had been beaten back.

The high command declared the pounding German onslaughts were splitting the Allies—the British failing back toward the channel and the Belgians and French seeking a southern outlet toward Valenciennes and Maubeuge.

Take Up New Position

With the British Expeditionary Forces in France, May 19—(Delayed—Passed by Field Censor)—
The British expeditionary force, fighting with a desperation born of the knowledge that their columns stand between an empire and the death of an empire, continued withdrawals today to positions on which they must inevitably make a final stand.

The situation resulting from an incredibly swift Nazi advance still is obscure.

Even experienced officers admit that they have no idea of the exact extent of the fighting or for certain where the next German blow will be delivered.

Censorship more rigid than ever forbids mention of the whereabouts of the new line but it is far stronger than any on which the British have stood thus far.

Rev. Goldner Will Speak to Methodists

Rev. Gerald Goldner, pastor of the Christian church at Warren, formerly of Mogadore, will give an account of his capture by Bedouin tribes while traveling in Palestine last year, at a dinner and program in the Methodist church at 6:30 p. m. Thursday.

The dinner and entertainment
are sponsored by the Methodist Men's club as the last meeting of the season.

Louis C. Baker, vocalist, of East Palestine, will appear on the program.
Rev. Goldner and his father were captured and held for ransom last year during their travels in the Holy Land, and after his father had been released and arranged for the payment of $5,000 ransom, he was freed.

Waives Trial, Fined

LISBON, May 20.—Kenneth Troll of East Palestine, indicted by the grand jury on a charge of reckless driving, waived jury trial in court
this morning and was fined $10

The jurors called for the arrest trial of Dr. Charles E. Plum of

The court nolleed a charge of Peter George Tenios, Salem lunch room proprietor. He was ordered to pay the costs in the case.

IT SHOULD—IT CAN—BUT WILL IT?

President Roosevelt's genius for inspirational leadership never appeared to better advantage than in his special message to congress on intensified preparation for national defense.

Americans already had decided in their own minds that it should be done. The President gave voice to their earnest conviction that it can be done. But the real necessity remains the same—to do it.

It is not enough merely to appropriate money and to spend it. The United States already has spent a great deal of money on defense. High living standards and cost in this country make preparedness much more costly than it is anywhere else in the world on the basis of dollar comparison.

Walter Lippmann proposed several days ago and his suggestion has been repeated by former President Hoover that national defense must be reshaped to conform with the lessons being taught so grimly in Europe. Great Britain, which placed its trust in the largest navy afloat, and France, which depended on the best trained army, both have learned to their sorrow that they neglected the new third arm of military force—the airplane.

Along with revision of defense policy there is obvious need for greater attention to development of a comprehensively coordinated foreign policy. It is certainly no secret to possible enemies of this country that its foreign policy has been laid down largely on the principle of the after-beat. When new situations arise, the United States attempts to meet them. It has not taken the initiative. Particularly dangerous has been the drift into bad relations in the Pacific area at a time when new threats were arising in the Atlantic area. Central and South American relations have been the object of considerable attention in the last few years, but it is apparent that pan-American unity still remains a better talking than acting point.

It cannot be overlooked that the American plan of defense is a restatement of the Monroe doctrine and embodies the safety not only of the United States, but of the entire hemisphere. This hemispheric concept of security would be absurd and dangerous as well if based on anything short of hemispheric cooperation. The United States must avoid the error of making pledges of security it is not equipped to keep in a crisis, or which might be frustrated in a crisis by lack of cooperation on the part of its intended beneficiaries. South and Central American governments, including Mexico, must be pressed for proof of their goodwill in the matter.

At home, manifestations of intentions, however good, do not remedy stresses and strains which threaten to block their performance. The domestic situation has been overshadowed temporarily by intense interest in the breath-taking developments of the war abroad, but it continues to be the problem of first importance. The shortcomings of the Roosevelt administration have not evaporated in the heat of popular interest in the project of greater preparedness. They still cry out for attention.

The record of President Roosevelt's administration reveals a long succession of good ideas which have been impaired and sometimes destroyed by poor execution and, what is worse, sometimes bad intentions. Mr. Roosevelt's strength does not consist of executive talent, but rather of a remarkable ability to foment discussion and crystallize opinion. He has performed the latter function brilliantly and no doubt will continue to do so.

His administration stands in acute need, however, of good executives, men who can complete the trilogy of it should—it can—and it will be. For the sake of popular confidence in the vital project being undertaken, the weakness should be overcome by inclusion in the government of a number of able administrators. The United States, taking a lesson from Germany, should equip itself with a few Hermann Goerings and perhaps at the same time might rid itself of its Joseph Goebbelses.

COLLAPSE OF THE NETHERLANDS

Collapse of the Netherlands under the terrific impact of Germany's war juggernaut scarcely can be called a surprise. It is plain by this time that no small nation in Europe can hope to withstand the onslaught of an army so efficient, so highly mechanized that its opponents, now splendidly equipped to fight the World War of 1914 in 1940, are a quarter of a century behind the times.

Germany's admitted aim is to use the Netherlands as a base for blitzkrieg against Great Britain. As it has been for centuries, the strip of water between the mainland and the island is of tremendous strategic importance. Airplanes can fly over it, but its surface still is controlled by the British navy. Napoleon wrestled with the same problem that now confronts Adolf Hitler—and couldn't find a way to transport an army across the Straits of Dover.

Since last September when Germany's war machine began to roll through Poland, it has been easy to discount each new triumph with doubt that the next attempt will be successful. With Holland gone, hope now shifts to Belgium and France. The Netherlands' Queen Wilhelmina is quoted as saying, "The Netherlands will one day, with the help of God, re-win its whole European territory." Not irreverently, it must be added that it will require the existence of a military juggernaut greater than the one militant Germany has put together while its intended victims preoccupied themselves with academic discussions of collective security.

Well, we see shawls are coming back into style. Maybe if we stick around long enough the mustache cup again will embrace its own—Ohio State Journal.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, May 21

THE MANY signs of mixed influences dominating this day's astrological map are indicative for several conflicting and confusing situations of major importance and portent. There is likely to be a swift and unexpected upheaval of the affairs, with unpredictable denouements. Business and employment are under crises that require much tact, shrewdness and compromise.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to be met with a year of sudden and surprising adventure, with much commotion, swift action of unforeseen nature, and probably a drastic reversal of fortunes, unless much sagacity, tact and calm deliberation be exercised.

A child born on this day may have a rather unusual character, shrewd, resourceful, persistent, yet changeable and erratic at times. With exalted aims it should be successful.

Dr. Gibbs Swings Freely, Too, In the Telling

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MY OLD FRIEND Dr. Adrian Gibbs says he is about to retire from practice, and the only advantage associated with it is that he can now tell some of his patients what he has been wanting to tell them for a long time. On her own tearful authority, I hear he said to one of them the other day, somewhat as follows:

"Madame, you seem to be suspicious that your stomach is staying out nights and not working regularly at the office as it is supposed to do. You have indigestion, so you say, or dyspepsia, and you have told me about it at great length. In fact, the only time you show any vivacity at all is while you are talking about the delinquencies of your stomach. You are as interested in your stomach as is a mother in a wayward son. You may not realize it, but while you are discussing this fascinating subject you touch rhythmically the place where you think your stomach is with the extended middle finger of your left hand.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

"Now I have investigated your stomach with all the resources at my command. I have removed some of the secretion of your stomach, and while you seem to think it is incompetent, I do not find it so. The sample I examined seemed to be very strong. It was quite capable, I believe, not only of digesting an ordinary meal but even of dissolving one of the buttons of my coat.

"The X-rays that you had taken in New York unquestionably fascinate you, and I don't wonder, considering the price you paid for them, but they fail to arouse my professional interest. They look like just another stomach to me and nothing else.

"You have brought me a list of the foods that a disingenuous clinic has said you can't eat. It is neatly typewritten, but I have been unable to elicit from you any real reason why you shouldn't eat them. In fact, I may let you in on a semi-professional secret and tell you that your husband called me up and asked me practically with tears in his voice not to give you any more foods you can't eat, because he likes some of the foods on that typewritten list and, according to him, since you got it, you won't have any of them in the house.

"Among the numerous treatments that you have undergone you tell me of the 'no breakfast cure.' You asked me my opinion of that and I will now tell you. For a great many people of my acquaintance a no-breakfast cure would be a very good thing, but for you, no. You need a good many breakfasts in succession. You are thin, you have half starved yourself with your crazy notions and most of your trouble is hunger. Of course, your stomach grows. It wants work. You have forced it into the army of the unemployed.

"My advice to you would be that your suspicions about your stomach are not well founded. You have a good, sober, industrious stomach. Your trouble is what you think of your stomach. Nothing, not even a stomach, can stand up under a continuous barrage of contempt and scorn and abuse.

"My first order to you is to eat a meal consisting of everything on that list that the distinguished clinic said you couldn't eat, and eat it with confidence.

"Then go home and empty your medicine chest. Throw away all the cathartics and soda pills and artificial substitutes, and greet your husband tonight with a kiss and tell him you feel fine whether you do or not, and that you are going to have cucumbers and lobster and beer and ice cream for dinner, and you want to go to a movie afterwards and then to a hot spot and dance. The shock may be bad for him for a while, but he will survive. Lady, you need to come alive."

Our Sales are Swell—and so are the deals your Buick dealer is making!

What to do when the bug bites you!

Buick prices begin at $895* for Business Coupe (illustrated)

FIGURES show that about one out of every five able-to-purchase new-car buyers really wants a Buick more than any other car.

Not all will buy one.

Too many of them without even getting actual figures will shake their heads and sigh, "Nope! A car that big and handsome must be out of my reach!"

You'll be smarter than that, we know.

When the bug to own a Buick bites you, you'll figure that a car as talked-about as Buick must be looked at first—if you're going to have anything to go on in judging 1940 values.

You'll realize it doesn't cost a cent to find out how one feels under your own hand and what the delivered prices are.

So you'll walk in, please, to the nearest Buick dealer and boldly say:

"Let me have a good look at that car that's showing the rest of 'em what modern style is.

"Let me try out that big straight-eight engine that's electrically balanced after assembly for smoothness to match a wrist watch's works.

"Show me those big soft coil springs you talk about and how they smooth out that rough stretch down the street—and what's the business about recoil-mounted Knee-Action, heaviest frames at the price, five-foot front seat room in SUPER models, and six dozen new 1940 features?"

When you've got the answers through a good long ride—ask one more question: "How much?"

Current prices† start at $895* for the business coupe, delivered at Flint, Mich. To this add transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), and optional equipment and accessories—though there will be few such "extras" you'll need.

That totals up to low delivered prices that are often only a few dimes more a day than on cars in the lowest-price class—so why hesitate or haggle?

When the bug bites you, get the facts—and you'll get a Buick and be happy!

†Prices subject to change without notice.

"Best buy's Buick!"

CHAPTER XXX
At last Clive said, "I say, North, I wish you'd let us bring in Melhorne. After all, a chap must know something and—"

Sakine North quietly, "If you'll let me handle Melhorne my way, Inspector, I'll promise you a definite report on Kilgour within a day."

"Yes. And if we"—he was careful to use the plural pronoun—"get a few breaks, Armstrong will be wearing a pair of your best handcuffs inside of thirty-six."

"What are you going to do?" "Surely that you photostat this manuscript signature. If it doesn't mean anything here, you'll be wise to wire the print to Scotland Yard and ask them to check with Paris, Berlin—"

"—And Rome?" North gave Melhorne's cheque to a young chemist who appeared in answer to a push button on Clive's desk. "Heat this, please, not above 120 degrees," he directed. "Get a clear picture of the print, then bring the cheque back as quickly as you can." He held up a hand and added Melhorne's powder compact. "A moment—please get a basic analysis of this cosmetic, and remember we're in a big rush."

They conversed on events aboard the Hial until the cheque was brought back then North nodded and caught up his hat. At the Bank of Assouan, a small time was in his fingertips when he asked for the manager on duty. "This way, please, sir," Mr. Flournoy will take care of you. When North presented the cheque, Mr. Flournoy turned not a hair as he read the amount, fifty thousand pounds—or a quarter of a million dollars.

"Ah, yes, precisely. And how do you wish the money to be paid?" North blinked a little. "Why—why I hadn't thought. But before I endorse this cheque I must ask what will seem a curious question. Who issued that cheque?" "On that point," Mr. Flournoy murmured, "I'm afraid I cannot satisfy your curiosity because we ourselves do not know."

"What?" "No sir. The original deposit and all deposits for this account, for that matter, have been made by messenger. A letter was forwarded requesting us to honor any cheque drawn and signed with the thumbprint such as was affixed to your cheque."

"How much remains in the account after this cheque is honored?" Mr. Flournoy sighed, made deprecatory gestures. "Dear me, sir, it would constitute a breach of confidence to answer that."

And this, despite all his blandishments, was all North could learn.

At ten minutes to eleven North entered the Hotel du Nil, giving positive instructions that any and all callers must be announced. Back in his room, he prepared to pack—continued residence in a hotel so evidently under M. Philippides' influence was not to be thought of longer. He laid out his Helmen and Schlager brief case, refreshed his memory with a few price lists, then reconsidered that code found in the brief case's secret compartment. There also was a pair of radiograms addressed to Follinsbee. They were in code and he was thus able to present a convincing picture of an employee hard at work when, despite his orders to the management, a knock sounded at the door.

"Who's there?" he called.

"Mr. Stag. Lemme in, Skipper, everything's okay."

When North complied, Melhorne, entered with a genial "Hello, Skipper!" but the soldier of fortune advanced warily, his pale eyes flickering from side to side.

North frowned. "You've got your nerve coming here after the other night!"

"Shucks, Skipper, I did you a good turn! Mind?" Without waiting for an assent, the burly figure turned the door key.

"Leave that key in the lock," North warned.

A grin widening on his powder-buff countenance, Melhorne turned. "Okay, Skip, you sure beat it off the Hial! My pronto this morning!" Gravely the intruder wagged his head. "Oughtn't to do things like that. Your face-out gave old Philippides-dees quite a turn. He was pretty mad, they say. By the way, that Ladd doll is plumb jittery over you, in case you don't know it."

North saw Melhorne's eyes linger on the half-decoded radiogram.

"Mind if I take a look at this?"

Lips moving, Melhorne read the beginning of a plea for instructions from the Lyda's master. He glanced at a couple of price lists, picked them up.

"Well, I reckon you are on the level, Skipper." He advanced with hand outstretched. "Congrats! When you told me you'd quit the Intelligence racket to make some money for yourself, I figured you were lying. But now... You're riding on the gravy train, too!"

Relaxed, unsuspecting at last, Melhorne flung his bulk into an armchair. "Well, Skipper, you did a smart thing when you decided to let Melhorne talk you into throwing in with the balbuss—the big boss."

"Maybe," North passed a doubtful hand over his chin. "By the way, Melhorne forgot to mention the gent's name."

"Did she?" Melhorne grinned. He was patently reveling in the sensation of knowing more of the situation than North. "You'll know in plenty of time."

Stag looked up suddenly. "Yep, I thought you were up to funny games till you cashed the cheque."

"I desire to go on living," North declared firmly. "It's lots of fun sometimes. No, I'm not looking for any dose such as that British major got."

vicinity of Jaffa, avoiding Damietta and the Pelusian mouth of the Nile. There's a British patrol waiting there an danother off El Arish."

To look at North so peaceably smoking in his chair there was nothing to betray his overwhelming sense of triumph.

"It is important," the girl in white was saying, "that until Monday you take no unnecessary chances!" This innocently caustic statement he marked with a large black cross and stored for further consideration. "You've been asked down to the Ladd's over Saturday haven't you?"

"Why, yes," he slowly admitted. "Don't you like the idea?"

"Oh, yes. That's out of town, as safe a place as any for you. At any rate, Stag and I expect to go along to—er—keep you company, and to save Lolita from those too-fascinating ways of yours." She cast him a mischievous glance. "If I weren't so gone on Stag, my gallant Captain, I could even fall for you myself."

"You do love him, don't you?" "Yes," she cried unashamedly. "He's fought alone against the world and so have I. We understand each other, but, lord, how we fight at times!"

Suddenly she caught up her bag. "Tomorrow you'll get final instructions." An impish smile flashed forth. "See you at the Ladd's, I hope, so please don't look worried. The college is a lovely spot and I'm sure you'll like Zara—she's a reliable friend. And now, good morning to you my fine brave Captain, and remember what I've said: 'This all for your own good.'"

Melhorne went out with a flash of white skirts and a laugh of sheer oeilivity.

Almost at once there came a rap at the door. Thinking Melhorne had returned, North said, "Come in."

But the caller was a native messenger who delivered a slim blue envelope. North ripped open the envelope and read:

To: Captain Hugh North
Hotel du Nil
Cairo

Please come with all speed to Heluan police station. B. K. B. heluan has just been pulled from the river.

C. CLIVE.

North's manner was that of a wicked small boy. "I had an important engagement at my bank this morning."

"You ought to be ashamed," Melhorne cried scornfully. "No one was going to stop payment. Monsieur Philippides raised the roof and so did Hasid Pasha. He thought it very rude of you to take French leave."

Melhorne soon made it clear that she wished to talk with North in private. Once the soldier of fortune had strolled out, she warned in an undertone, "Be careful what you say to Stag. He's a dear boy, but he isn't the most discreet of men."

"Thanks for the warning, but remember I've known Stag a good while." North waved her to a chair. "We know how to get on. Now what do you want me to do next?"

She surveyed him in silence for a moment. "You're in touch with your skipper?"

"I was just telling Melhorne so."

"Well, tell him to proceed to the

Theater Attractions

Taken from the Robert Sherwood play, by the same name, "Waterloo Bridge" brings Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor to the screen as the tragic young lovers of the first world war. The picture is showing at the State through Tuesday.

Vivien Leigh, whose success as Scarlett O'Hara was one of the acting triumphs of the year, turns in a brilliant performance as the little ballet dancer who finds love in the turmoil of the conflict and learns the meaning of sacrifice.

Robert Taylor does his best work in a number of pictures, turning in a mature, deeply emotional performance that justifies his screen position after the many walkaway parts he has had.

Maria Ouspenskaya, Lucille Watson, Virginia Field, C. Aubrey Smith, Janet Shaw, Janet Waldo, Steffi Duna, and Virginia Carroll are seen in the cast.

The story of a young English officer and the little ballet dancer, who meet and fall in love during an air raid on the Waterloo bridge, part there when he returns to France. When he is reported killed, she collapses and her friend and roommate supports them until she is well. The young dancer and her friend, unable to find work, take the only course open to them. A year later, the officer returns, but the girl, fearing her past will ruin him, leaves him.

The stirring climax of the story takes place on Waterloo bridge where the couple met. The picture is excellently done, with individually good performances highlighting the story.

Akron Garfield Regains N.E.O. District Track Championship

DAVE TREPANIER LEADS GARFIELD TO N.E.O. CROWN

Scores 23 Points for Winning Team In Track Meet Here

Presenting the nearest thing to a "one man show" that track fans of northeastern Ohio have seen in many a year, Akron Garfield captured the district Class A track and field championship at Reilly stadium Saturday.

The Akron school, dethroned as champion last year after winning the district title in 1938, piled up 38 points to regain the northeastern Ohio championship from a field of 26 Class A teams.

A surprisingly strong Massillon team finished second to Garfield, scoring 28 points. Akron South, last year's champion, placed third with 24 1/2 points.

Other Scoring
Other teams finished in the following order: Akron Buchtel, 20; Akron North, 17; East Palestine, 16 1/2; Ravenna, 14 1/2; Canton McKinley, 14; Boardman, 10; Salem, 9; Youngstown Rayen, 9; Akron West 9; Struthers, 4; Akron East, 3; Warren, 3; Louisville, 2 1/2; Barberton, 2; Lisbon, Wellsville and Youngstown Fitch failed to score.

The hero of Akron Garfield's triumph was stocky, blond-headed Dave Trepanier, a "one man track team" who won three events and tied for first in another.

Trepanier scored 23 points, nearly enough to win the meet by himself. He won the 100 and 220-yard dashes, the broad jump and tied for first in the 440-yard dash with Ray Getz of Massillon.

Trepanier's brilliant individual performance and the surprisingly strong showing of Massillon, which is supporting a track team this season for the first time in many years, stole the show, although four meet records were broken.

Most startling of the record-breaking performances was that of Ray Jordan of Akron South, state mile champion, who shattered the district record in the mile by racing the distance in 4 minutes and 28 seconds.

Jordan bettered Sharon McMullen's old record of 4 minutes, 30 seconds which had stood unmoled since 1932.

The Akron South star's record-breaking performance was all the more surprising because he had no one to pace him in the four-lap race. Jordan finished far ahead of the rest of the field, breaking not only the district record but his own Reilly stadium first record as well.

Gillom Sets Record
Massillon athletes accounted for the other three record breaking performances. Horace Gillom, football and basketball star, who has never competed in major track competition before this season, hung up a new record in the 220-yard low hurdles by stepping over the stakes in 25.6 seconds. The old record of 26 seconds was set by Mort of East Palestine in 1935.

Gillom anchored Massillon's 880 and mile relay teams to new meet records in addition to setting a new mark himself. The Massillon 880-yard team stepped the half-mile in 1 minute, 31.5 seconds to knock 1.5 seconds off the old mark set by Canton McKinley in 1939. In the mile relay, Massillon's team raced the distance in 3 minutes, 29.9 seconds to better the old record of 3 minutes, 30.6 seconds set by Akron North in 1939.

Salem, in scoring nine points, qualified two athletes for the state meet at Columbus Friday and Saturday. Dick Beck won the shot put for the Quakers, while Elliott Hansell ran third in the 220-yard dash.

PHILS' SHOWING SURPRISES BIG LEAGUE PILOTS

Quaker City Club Wins 4 of Last 5 Games the Hard Way

Stranger, you'd better smile when you say they're the "phoolish Phils" these days.

The one-collapsible Quaker City set in the National league refuses to roll over and play dead any more. Doc Prothro, the good dentist, yanked a couple of ailing "teeth" from his infield, put in a right nifty bridge as replacement, and what with a fair set of young pitchers, his boys are really snapping at the opposition.

Now, this isn't to say the Phils are going to win the pennant. That's probably asking a little too much in one order. Besides, the Cincinnati Reds, who boosted their league lead to a game and a half with an 8-4 win over the Boston Bees yesterday, may have something to say about that.

Four Out of Five
But the Phils have taken four of the five starts on their current home stand, topping it off with a 6-5 decision the "hard way" over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, and are way up in fifth place.

They pulled one out of the hat when Bennie Warren, a bench-warming catching hopeful, singled with the bases loaded in the ninth to whip the bungling Bucs. Earlier in the game, Chuck Klein hit his third homer in eight days.

The Chicago Cubs spotted the Brooklyn Dodgers five runs in a third inning rally, and then came on to win out 7-6 in the tenth on "Tip" Russell's homer with a mate aboard, thereby climbing back into third place in the National league standings. This game went from the sublime to the ridiculous and wound up with the Cubs using 19 players and Manager Gabby Hartnett playing first base.

The St. Louis Cardinals, after blowing a three-run lead, tied it up on Joe Oregio's eighth-inning homer against the New York Giants and finished on top 6-5 in the tenth when Oregio came through with a single to shove the deciding run home. Johnny Mize hit his 12th homer of the season.

With all due respect to Cincinnati Bucky Walters' elbowing, the best tossing of the afternoon was provided by Cleveland's Bobby Feller at the expense of the New York Yankees. Master Bobby chalked up his fifth victory of the year, pitching a four-hitter for a 5-1 win over the woeful world champions.

The Chicago White Sox did their best to produce their first home victory of the season, but despite a five-run rally in the ninth, they wound up on the short end of a 12-10 count with Washington in a game marked by a half-a-dozen homers. Old Elton Auker was handed an eight-run edge in the first five innings, so it was no trick at all for him to pitch the St. Louis Browns to a 10-4 victory over the Athletics.

Banquet Honors
Sohio Bowlers
Four members of the Salem Sohio bowling team, which finished second in the Youngstown division of the Sohio league, attended a banquet in Ashtabula Saturday night, marking the close of the 1939-40 bowling season.

The Salem team was represented by Keith Harris, Clyde Beeler and Herman and Michael Benning. Bowlers were present from Columbiana, Youngstown, Warren, Niles, Orwell, Ashtabula, Geneva and Salem.

SOFTBALL PLAY DELAYED AGAIN

Opening Games In Class A and Church Loops Postponed

Delays encountered by workmen making improvements on Centennial park baseball diamond again today forced J. M. Kelley to postpone the scheduled opening of the 1940 season of city softball leagues.

The Class A and Church teams were scheduled to start play today. Kelley, director of the leagues, said it is uncertain when the diamonds will be ready for use, adding that he hopes they will be available sometime this week.

Inclement weather held up work on the improvement project last Friday and Saturday, while a hard rain Sunday left the diamonds unsuitable for work today.

Service Director Charles Kennedy has promised to place additional workmen on the job to rush completion of the project so the leagues may start play this week.

Kelley announced the postponement will not affect the Class A and Church league schedules announced last week. The same teams scheduled to play opening games today will play the first games when the diamonds are ready, Kelley said. Other games will follow in the order previously announced.

Muscled Moochers
CHICAGO—Don't jump to the conclusion that the boys with the big, rippling muscles turn in the best day's work advises Felix Jobie, personnel officer of the Cook county forest preserve district.

Said he in an address: "The man with the big, bulging muscles is not always the best workman. Too often he loafers around displaying his brute strength while the less brawny do the work for him."

Driscollwood Noses Out Merchants, 5-4, In Softball Game

A four-run spree in the first inning boosted the Driscollwood Kennels softball team to a 5-4 victory over the Leetonia Merchants at the Driscollwood field, five miles south of Salem on Route 45, yesterday.

The Driscollwood team, formerly known as Phillips church, added one run in the fifth to their four in the first to remain out in front throughout the game. Leetonia counted one run in the first frame, two in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Pitcher Phillips of Driscollwood held Leetonia to six hits while Don Harold, Leetonia moundman, allowed seven safe blows.

The Kennels will face a strong Pittsburgh team at the Driscollwood field next Sunday.

PREPAREDNESS, NAZI SECRET

Associated Press Writer Views Operations On Western Front

stitute bridges ready for every strategic river or canal crossing in Belgium or France likely to be dynamited or otherwise damaged.

German reinforcement cars bring all this ready-made equipment with them on wheels in the motorized vanguard.

Another indication of preparedness in every detail came to us when in our 400-mile drive from Berlin to the last German frontier station we passed through Munster. In Westphalia, the scene of the signing of the Westphalian peace treaty in 1648 which brought to an end the thirty years' war.

Hitler already seems determined that if he forces England and France to their knees he will make their representatives come to Munster's picturesque and ancient hall to sign on the dotted line.

With the exception of moving motorized columns and the fact that we saw many men in uniforms, there was nothing indicating the mad holocaust only a relatively short distance away.

Germany seemed at peace and even the Polish prisoners working in the fields seemed like harbingers of peace.

Different at Night

Not so at night, however. People told us how night after night they must go to air raid protection cellars as a precautionary measure. They claimed that only a little damage has been done.

We hardly reached our hotel on the German border before warning sirens resounded. It proved to be a false alarm, however.

"Where is Hitler?" was one of the first questions we asked.

Each officer or private asked that question would tell us he saw the fuhrer some time or other in the past week.

Apparently Hitler is moving from one formation to another with the same dash which characterizes all his actions.
